THE

South-Carolina GAZETTE

[Numb. 969.]

By Capt. Hamilton, from Jamaica, we have Advice, that his Excellency EDWARD TRELAWNY, Eſq; late Governor, &c. of that Iſland, departed the ſame on the 26th of November laſt, in his Majeſty's Ship Aſſurance, Capt. Scroop.—On the 24th very cordial Addreſſes were preſented him by Order of the Council and Aſſembly, and a grand Entertainment was given at Port-Royal, to which all the Gentlemen on the Iſland were invited, and all that were able to travel, came, from every Part, to take their Leave of this much-loved Governor; and at his Departure, a real Concern was viſible in every Contenance, the very Negroes expreſſing theirs by honeſt Tears.—Our Letters from Jamaica farther ſay, that there never was a more mild, prudent, juſt and impartial Adminiſtration than that of Mr. Trelawny; and that no Man ever governed with more univerſal Applauſe. A Character that ought to be aim'd at by every one, whoſe particular Happineſs and Intereſt, and that of the People, are nearly connected, and depend reciprocally on each other.

PORT-ROYAL in JAMAICA, Nov. 25, 1752.

The ADDRESS of the Honourable COUNCIL of the Iſland of Jamaica, as the ſame was delivered on the 24th Inſtant, by the Honourable Charles Dawes, Eſq; Chairman to a Committee of that Board, to return Thanks to Col. Trelawny, for his juſt Adminiſtration of Government in this Iſland for 14 Years; with his Anſwer.

SIR,

WE are commanded by the Council to return you their thanks, for your juſt and impartial adminiſtration, and the many important ſervices you have done this Iſland during the time of your government.

As nothing diſplays the noble endowments of the [illegible] of giving this public teſtimony of our re[illegible] al eſteem.

We cannot Sir, pretend to enumerate here, the [illegible] benefits we have received from your ſteady and [illegible]ent adminiſtration, but we ſhould be greatly [illegible]ing to ourſelves were we to paſs over in ſilence [illegible] ineſtimable advantages we gained by the ſuppreſſion [illegible] entire reduction which ſoon followed, of our inteſ- [illegible] enemies the rebellious negroes, who, for a long [illegible] of time, had reſiſted our utmoſt efforts; and, [illegible]withſtanding the great expence of blood and treaſ[illegible] ſtill continued by their ravages to render many [illegible] of the Iſland uninhabitable, and every part in[illegible]. The great increaſe and remarkable improve- [illegible] plantations throughout the whole country, are [illegible]table proofs of this, and will perpetuate your [illegible] among us with honour. It is to your prudent [illegible] in this important affair, that after our deli[illegible] from ſo great an evil, the tranquility which [illegible]d, has been continued to us, productive of ſo [illegible] happineſs to every individual.

[illegible]ITUDE obliges us, Sir, at a time when no [illegible] can be ſuppoſed to influence us, or that we [illegible] aw'd by any fear of power, or tempted by any [illegible] intereſt, to pay you this juſt tribute of our [illegible]pplauſe for the conſtant attachment ſhewn to [illegible] of this Iſland, during an adminiſtration of [illegible] years; and we beg leave to aſſure you, that [illegible] particular pleaſure to ourſelves that we are [illegible] by the council to return you this due and [illegible]wledgment, which we now do in their [illegible] you a happy [illegible] for your long [illegible] with a gracious [illegible]

Gentlemen,

[illegible] you and the other gentlemen of his ma- [illegible] Council my moſt ſincere and hearty thanks [illegible] kind teſtimony of your affection, which gives [illegible] higher pleaſure, coming from a board for which [illegible] greateſt eſteem. [illegible] my capacity, [illegible] but my ſhare of [illegible] your kindneſs has turned your eyes on my intentions, and overprized my actions; the greater is my obligation. The applauſe of ſo honourable a board crowns my exit with glory, and ever ſhall be had by me in the greateſt remembrance.

The ADDRESS of the Houſe of ASSEMBLY of the Iſland of Jamaica, as the ſame was delivered on the 24th Inſtant, by Richard Beckford, Eſq; Chairman of a Committee appointed to give their Thanks to Col. Trelawny, for his juſt Adminiſtration, and the many important Services rendered this Iſland; with Col. Trelawny's Anſwer.

SIR,

WE are ordered by the houſe of aſſembly to give you their thanks, for your juſt adminiſtration, and the many important ſervices rendered this Iſland.

IT is with the greateſt chearfulneſs, that we obey the commands of the houſe on this occaſion, tho' we are ſenſible of the difficulty of performing them, ſuitable to their expectations, and to the dignity of the ſubject.

THE difficulties and dangers that ſurrounded us on your firſt entrance into this government, gave you opportunities of diſplaying the higheſt abilities, which you exerted in every inſtance, where the honour of his majeſty's crown, and the public intereſt of your country called you.

BY theſe virtues, inſtead of borrowing, you have added a luſtre to that exalted ſtation, in which our gracious ſovereign had placed you; by your moderation and unaffected concern for the welfare of thoſe over whom you preſided; you have ſecured their love and affections, and thereby acquired a glory, which KING's cannot give.

CAN we look back on the miſerable ſituation of our country, bleeding under the rage of a cruel and inteſtine enemy? [illegible] citizens; how happily this event has been improved for the public good, the number of ſettlements now carrying on, in the parts moſt expoſed to that dangerous enemy, loudly proclaim.

IF in the midſt of thoſe eminent ſervices a few rays of diſcontent have at times appeared, let them be attributed to the courſe of all human affairs, and not to want of virtue in you. You ſaw with humanity thoſe unhappy diviſions, and many were your attempts to conciliate the minds, and reſtore good temper amongſt us, by your prudent endeavours, harmony and unanimity were reſtored, and you have thereby left behind you a monument of gratitude, in the heart of every diſpaſſionate man in this community.

THESE are our pure ſentiments, which we have choſe to deliver to you now you are in a private ſtation: They are not only ours, but the ſentiments of the whole body of the people, whom you have governed for ſo many years.

WE ſhall detain you no longer than to execute the commands of the houſe, which we do by returning you their thanks for your juſt adminiſtration, and the many important ſervices rendered this Iſland.

Gentlemen,

THIS kind teſtimony of affection from the houſe of aſſembly, claims my warmeſt acknowledgments. 'Tis to their affection I am obliged for the favourable light in which they have placed my actions, [illegible] have ever been directed to the good of this Iſland, [illegible] I ever take any ſtep relating to the public [illegible] ſolely to the public good. [illegible] I reſigned my truſt to a gentleman who has abilities to accompliſh that end, which he certainly will not fail of, if properly aſſiſted, here and at home.

Kingſton, in Jamaica, November 25th, 1752. On Monday laſt was held, at the town of St. Jago de la Vega, before his excellency Charles Knowles, Eſq; as captain-general, governor and commander in chief of this Iſland, preſident, and nine other of his majeſty's commiſſioners appointed by act of parliament, a high court of admiralty, for the trying, hearing and determining felonies, piracies and robberies committed on the high ſeas, &c. At which court [illegible] and Domingo De a Garſa, the captain and lieutenant of a pirate Schooner called [illegible], were convicted of piracy, and received ſentence of death accordingly, and we hear their death warrant was on Thurſday laſt ſigned for their execution [illegible] Fridays.

November 25. His excellency, the governor, has been pleaſed, to reprieve the two Spaniards, for a few days, who ſhould have been executed yeſterday, for piracy, purſuant to the ſentence of a high court of admiralty.

Some Verſes occaſioned by the Calamities of S. Carolina.

IF human life, in proſperous ſtation plac'd,
Oft ſeems the more with blemiſhes debas'd;
Then griefs may to the ſon of man be given,
Which ſhew the gracious purpoſes of heaven:
As gold is in the furnace taught to ſhine,
So virtues in adverſity refine.

And ſeem to hold a compact with the land.
Vain man, [illegible]

[illegible] We are [illegible] informed, that a [illegible] ſeveral [illegible] money on board, [illegible] Capt. From the [illegible] Evening-Poſt, Oct. 5, 1752.

Extract of a Letter from Colcheſter, Aug. 15.

[illegible] have heard that a cheſt was ſeized [illegible] cuſtom-houſe officers, which was landed near [illegible] about a fortnight ago: They took it for [illegible] goods, though the perſon with it produced [illegible] Frances [illegible] to Mr. Williams, as a Hamburgh merchant. The people not ſatisfied with the account Mr. Williams gave, opened the cheſt, and one of them was going to run his hanger in, when the perſon to whom it belonged clapt his hand upon his ſword, and deſired him to deſiſt (in French) for it was the corpſe of his dear wife. Not content with this, the officers plucked off the embalming, and found it as he had ſaid. The man, who appeared to be a perſon of conſequence, was in the utmoſt agony while they made a ſpectacle of the lady. They [illegible] in the high church, where any body might come and look on her, and would not ſuffer him to bury her 'till he gave a further account of himſelf. [illegible] other cheſts of fine cloaths, jewels, &c. belonging to the deceaſed. He acknowledged at laſt that he was a perſon of quality, that his name was [illegible] that he was born at Florence, and the [illegible] was a native of England, whom he married, and [illegible] deſired to be buried in England; that he had brought [illegible] in Italy to France by land, there [illegible] for Dover, diſcharged the veſſel there, [illegible] the wind drove hither [illegible]. This account was not enough [illegible] the name and con[illegible] to clear himſelf of a ſuſpicion of murder. He was continually in tears, and had a key of [illegible] where he ſat every day with the corpſe [illegible] to ſee him there, and the ſcene ſo [illegible] hardly bear it, he ſaid it was [illegible]. He was much pleaſed with [illegible] both Latin and French, [illegible] who the lady [illegible] to be a perſon he knew, he [illegible] the face. In ſhort, the [illegible] he was the earl of Roſebury's [illegible] and his title lord Delmany [illegible] he was born and educated in Italy, and [illegible] till two or three years ago, [illegible] London, and was in company with [illegible] he fell paſſionately in love, and [illegible] to quit the kingdom and marry him; [illegible] ſhe had travelled with her all [illegible] when ſhe was dying ſhe aſked for [illegible] I am the wife of the [illegible] ſiſter of [illegible] my maiden [illegible] and my laſt requeſt is, to be [illegible]. The poor gentleman who [illegible] he never knew ('till this con[illegible]) that ſhe was another's wife; but [illegible] he brought her over, [illegible] (if the corpſe [illegible]) making any ſtir about [illegible] this confeſſion, [illegible] at firſt in a [illegible] [illegible] ſhed tears over it; and at laſt was very loth to part with her to have her buried. He put himſelf in the moſt ſolemn mourning, and on ſunday laſt, in a coach, attended the corpſe to Th—, where Mr. G. was in ſolemn mourning likewiſe. The Florentine is a genteel perſon, ſeems about 25 years of age, and they ſay a ſenſible man; but there was never any thing like his behaviour to his dear, dear wife, for ſo he would call her to the laſt. Mr. G— attended him to London yeſterday, and they were very civil to each other, but my lord is inconſolable; he ſays he muſt fly England, which he can never ſee more. I have had this account from many hands, and can aſſure you it is fact. Kitty Cannom is, I believe the firſt woman in England that had two huſbands attend her to the grave together. You may remember her to before; her life would appear more romantic than a novel.

From the London Magazine, for October, 1752.

In the Gazetteer of the 9th, we had the following particulars relating to the ſame affair. The perſon called the young Florentine is the eldeſt ſon of the earl of Roſbury, a Scotch peer, againſt whom a ſtatute of lunacy has ſome time been taken out; his title is lord Delmany, not lord Delamere, as it was printed in the letter. Some of the circumſtances are not true in fact, tho' the letter-writer from Colcheſter might be miſtaken. Lord Delmany was born and educated in Scotland, and never had been abroad 'till within theſe four years. When he came to London, he ſaw and fell in love with the celebrated Kate Cannon, actually married her, and carried her abroad with him. His lordſhip, in order to conceal his name and quality from the world, in his concern at this extraordinary affair, endeavoured to paſs for a Florentine, and would ſpeak nothing but French or Latin, of which he is a great maſter: He pretended to be incapable of ſpeaking Engliſh, and had almoſt accompliſhed the deſire of the deceaſed, without diſcovering himſelf. The world may put what conſtruction they pleaſe upon this odd accident; but ſuch an inſtance of tenderneſs, as it is ſeldom to be met with, ought not to be ridiculed, as he knew nothing of her previous marriage.

Paris, Oct. 13. Letters from Port L'Orient bring advice, that they are fitting out eleven ſhips with the utmoſt diligence, in which 4400 men are to be embarked for the Eaſt Indies.

London, Oct. 21. Upon a report, that the parliament will meet early this winter, which however we dare not affirm, many members and other perſons of diſtinction are haſtening up to town, and it is thought, as there is no appearance of the public tranquility being diſturbed, abundance of popular bills will be brought upon the carpet, in order to revive and promote induſtry, repreſs that diſpoſition to indolence and luxury, which prevails amongſt the lower [illegible] of people, and give proper encouragement to thoſe who would undertake things calculated to eaſe and aſſiſt the public. Mea[illegible] the more neceſſary, as we ſee almoſt every [illegible] in Europe purſuing them, and even [illegible] may win a race, if you not only let them ſtart firſt, but don't think of [illegible] them in time.

Oct. 24. On Monday laſt John Apperly, Eſq; one of his majeſty's engineers, and chief engineer to the African company, ſet out for Portſmouth, in order to embark on board the Earl of Halifax, Capt. Thompſon, for Africa, to direct the building and repairing ſeveral forts and caſtles upon the coaſt of Guinea.

We hear from a place called Beſtmead, in Huntingdonſhire, that a few days ſince a woman of that place was delivered of five children, three of whom are now alive. The ſame woman had three children at a birth about 11 months ſince, ſo that ſhe has had 8 children in leſs than 12 months.

We hear that the parliament will not meet for the diſpatch of buſineſs 'till the middle of January.

It is ſaid that all government turns upon the two hinges of Reward and Puniſhment; and this experience ſhews to be true. But in a certain country, the Laws turn only on one Hinge, and to their unluckily, which the people (whether out of Obſtinacy, or inherent Courage, [illegible] determined) leaſt regard. It is propoſed to hang the government ſpeedily and ſteadily on both Hinges, by giving public and handſome Rewards to all who diſtinguiſh themſelves by Induſtry, Probity, [illegible] of any kind; and that a proper Fund will be fixed for the Payment of theſe Rewards, by ſuppreſſing Offices where, though the Salaries are large, there is little or nothing to do for it.

London, Oct. 26. The [illegible] yacht, that is to bring over the duke of Newcaſtle, ſailed for Calais laſt Sunday; and yeſterday and to-day the yachts that are to bring over his majeſty were all on their way, in order to join the men of war appointed as convoys, and ſail together for Helvoetſluys.

In a few days ſome veſſels will be taken into the ſervice of the government, to carry ſtores, timber, deals, &c. to Gibraltar, Port-Mahon, &c.

London, Oct. 28. According to private letters from Conſtantinople, by the way of Venice, the Janiſſaries have cauſed a very curious relation to be printed at Pera, in Latin, Italian, [illegible] in which their conduct [illegible] very plain [illegible]

[illegible] him in an attendance upon public affairs himſelf, and draw his confidence from theſe monſters of no ſex, [illegible] have neither the courage of men nor the tenderneſs of [illegible] but all the vices of both, and a ſubtility unknown to [illegible]

Whitehall, Oct. 28. We have received an account [illegible] Liſbon, that on the 19th of September laſt, the [illegible] fleet, with 18 merchant ſhips and one man of war, [illegible] arrived at that port: A lieutenant and eight French [illegible] came as paſſengers on board this fleet, being the only [illegible] who had been ſaved out of a French Eaſt India ſhip [illegible] guns and 350 men, which left Port L'Orient in A[illegible] and was bound to Pondicherry; but having unhapp[illegible] fire about 100 leagues from the coaſt of Brazil, the [illegible] crew periſhed, except theſe nine men, who eſcaped in [illegible] boat. There were ſeveral paſſengers of diſtinction [illegible] particularly M. de la Touche, who commanded at [illegible] of Pondicherry, and there were likewiſe magnificent [illegible] for the nabobs and chief people of that country, and three millions of livres in ſpecie, and 600 barrels of [illegible]

London, Nov. 1. It is confirmed that General Wa[illegible] Spaniſh ambaſſador, who is on his return to London, [illegible] ged with the neceſſary inſtructions for concluding a ne[illegible] vention with the Britiſh court, relating to the naviga[illegible] the Engliſh in the Weſt Indian ſeas: It is alſo ſaid, [illegible] Catholic majeſty has ſent poſitive orders to the gover[illegible] the Havannah to pay out of the royal treaſury the ſum[illegible] upon as an indemnification for the Engliſh ſhips illegally [illegible] by the Guarda Coſtas in America; and that the Spa[illegible] vernors in that part of the world have been charged [illegible] more careful for the future to prevent the like c[illegible] complaints.

Our correſpondent at Paris informs us, that the M[illegible] d'Argenſon, in his return to court, was ſtopped at [illegible] diſtance from Niſmes by ſix perſons; one of them [illegible] that he would forgive this extraordinary manner of p[illegible] ing, aſſuring him, that as they were ſincerely loya[illegible] king, ſo they had the greateſt affection and moſt p[illegible] reſpect for his perſon, and only deſired he would pre[illegible] memorial of the grievances of the Proteſtants to [illegible] Chriſtian majeſty; which he very readily promiſed, [illegible] very punctually performed.

All the late advices from Peterſburgh and Stockholm [illegible] that there is no probability of ſeeing the peace of the [illegible] diſturbed, the Ruſſian and Swediſh courts being equa[illegible] poſed to cultivate each other's friendſhip; the former [illegible] ing nothing but to maintain a kind of empty pre-emi[illegible] which may in moſt caſes be allowed without any prej[illegible] its neighbours; and the latter being under no tempt[illegible] quarrel, unleſs forced to it by engagements with othe[illegible] ers: So that if no broils ariſe in Germany, no diſtu[illegible] happen in the North.

They write from Vienna, that the privy counſellor [illegible] has lately reſigned all his employments into the hands o[illegible] Imperial majeſties, on account of his paſſing into his Bri[illegible] majeſty's ſervice, as elector of Hanover, but as yet, [illegible] not hear what poſt he is to have.

Dublin, Nov. 4. We are informed, that there is [illegible] late court in Europe, whoſe agents are very induſtrious [illegible] where in prying into all manufactures, and loſe no oppo[illegible] ty of practiſing on the paſſions or diſtreſs of able wor[illegible] in order to perſuade them to quit their native countr[illegible] one where, as they are pleaſed to aſſert, merit is prope[illegible] warded; and too frequently ſuch inſinuations prevail.

We hear there is a ſcheme on foot for building a[illegible] bridge croſs the River Thames, but upon what part [illegible] is not yet known.

Thurſday a meſſenger arrived from Harwich, with [illegible] count that the Lords Anſon and Delawar arrived th[illegible] Wedneſday night, and propoſed ſailing at ten o'clo[illegible] next morning for Holland.

The Oporto Packet, Dodd, [illegible] for Opo[illegible] his paſſage between the Lands-end head and the No[illegible] land, run through betwixt two and three hundred [illegible] French fiſhing veſſels, who had a great number o[illegible] on board.

TO-MORROW.

To-morrow, didſt thou ſay?
Methought I heard Horatio ſay to-morrow.
Go to—I will not hear of it—to-morrow!
—'Tis a ſharper that ſtakes his penury
Againſt thy plenty; that takes thy ready caſh,
And pays thee nought but wiſheſt hopes, and promiſes,
The currency of idiots—Injurious bankrupt,
That gulls the eaſy creditor!—To-morrow!
It is a period no where to be found,
Unleſs perchance in the fool's kalendar.
Wiſdom diſdains the word, nor holds ſociety
With thoſe who own it—No, Horatio,
'Tis fancy's child, and folly is its father;
Wrought of ſuch ſtuff as dreams are, and as [illegible]
As the fantaſtick viſions of the evening.
But ſoft, my friend—Arreſt the preſent moments;
For, be aſſured they are errant tell-tales;
And tho' their flight be ſilent, and their path
Trackleſs, as the wing'd couriers of the air,
They poſt to heaven, and there record thy folly.
For that thou, like a faithleſs centinel,
Didſt let them paſs unnotic'd, unimprov'd.
And know, becauſe thou ſlumbred'ſt on thy watch,
Thou ſhalt be made to anſwer at the bar
For every fugitive: And when thou thus
Shalt ſtand impleaded at the high tribunal
Of hood-wink'd juſtice, who ſhall tell thy audit?
Then ſtay the preſent inſtant, dear Horatio;
Imprint the marks of wiſdom on its wings.
'Tis of more worth than kingdoms; far more precious
Than all the crimſon treaſures of life's fountain!

[illegible] elude thy graſp; but like good old Patriarch upon record, the bleſt angel faſt until he bleſs thee.

YESTERDAY.

[illegible]ELL.—Yeſterday is paſs'd, and [illegible] be [illegible] recall'd.—What did we yeſterday? How do?
[illegible]e, or good, or bad?—Let us reflect—
[illegible] not be forgot; for in the book
[illegible] 'tis minuted.—Did we tranſgreſs?
[illegible] we did—But heaven is merciful:
let us not abuſe heaven's mercy: Our duty
[illegible]epentance—What is repentance aſk'd thee?—
mourn the follies paſt, prevent the future.—
prevent the future," mind; for cries and tears
[illegible]e are vain—Yet who can think to have [illegible]'d the univerſal Sovereign,
[illegible]out a flood of tears?—At every fault
[illegible]one, whenever I remember it,
[illegible] weeps blood.—Then let us iſſue penitence.
[illegible]e have not always ſinn'd—not always
[illegible] we do—I yeſterday reliev'd
[illegible] friend; his crime was poverty:
[illegible] my gold, I gave him re-formation
[illegible] eye, and reconcil'd it to him.
[illegible] oratio—'Twas a noble act—
[illegible] beauteous maid from violation.
[illegible] virtue ſtruggled with her want,
[illegible] inhuman tyrant! O want
[illegible] cut deep, and force the wiſe and good
[illegible]ches, in deeds their ſouls abhor,
[illegible]y, but 'not my will, conſents,'
[illegible] Fancy's ſweeteſt child"—Accurſed want,
[illegible] powerful aid prevented it,
[illegible] forc'd her.
[illegible] in actions ſuch as theſe:
T[illegible] MORROW, ſmiling, yield us comfort,
[illegible] day the ſame—till death, the friend,
[illegible] lead to innocence and virtue,
[illegible] deſign, to uſher to the court
[illegible] prince, whoſe plaudit waits us,
[illegible] the hoſt of heaven ſhall ſhout us, WELCOME!

[illegible] Hamilton, from Jamaica, we have Advice, [illegible] his Excellency Edward Trelawny, Eſq; late Governor, &c. of that Iſland, departed the ſame on the 26th of November laſt, in his Majeſty's Ship Aſſurance, Capt. Scroop.—On the 24th very cordial Addreſſes were preſented him by Order of the Council and Aſſembly, and a grand Entertainment was given at Port-Royal, to which all the Gentlemen on the Iſland were invited, and all that were able to travel, came, from every Part, to take their Leave of this much-loved Governor; and at his Departure, a real Concern was viſible in every Cont[illegible] very Negroes expreſſing theirs by honeſt Tears. —Our Letters from Jamaica farther ſay, that there never was a more mild, prudent, juſt and impartial Adminiſtration than that of Mr. Trelawny; and that no Man ever governed with more univerſal Applauſe. A Character that ought to be aim'd at by every one, whoſe particular Happineſs and Intereſt, and that of the People, are nearly connected, and depend reciprocally on each other.

PORT-ROYAL in JAMAICA, Nov. 25, 1752.

The ADDRESS of the Honourable COUNCIL of the Iſland of Jamaica, as the ſame was delivered on the 24th Inſtant, by the Honourable Charles Dawes, Eſq; Chairman to a Committee of that Board, to return Thanks to Col. Trelawny, for his juſt Adminiſtration of Government in this Iſland for 14 Years; with his Anſwer.

SIR,

WE are commanded by the Council to return you their thanks, for your juſt and impartial adminiſtration, and the many important ſervices you have done this Iſland during the time of your government.

As nothing diſplays the noble endowments of the mind with greater ſplendor, or renders a man in any honourable ſtation more truly illuſtrious, than a ſteady uniform ſeries of action, derived from the principles and maxims of natural juſtice, for which you are ſo eminently diſtinguiſhed: It is with the greateſt pleaſure we embrace this opportunity before your departure, of giving this public teſtimony of our reſpect and eſteem.

We cannot Sir, pretend to enumerate here, the many benefits we have received from your ſteady and prudent adminiſtration, but we ſhould be greatly wanting to ourſelves were we to paſs over in ſilence the ineſtimable advantages we gained by the ſuppreſſion and entire reduction which ſoon followed, of our inteſtine enemies the rebellious negroes, who, for a long ſeries of time, had reſiſted our utmoſt efforts; and, notwithſtanding the great expence of blood and treaſure, ſtill continued by their ravages to render many parts of the Iſland uninhabitable, and every part inſecure. The great increaſe and remarkable improvements of plantations throughout the whole country, are inconteſtable proofs of this, and will perpetuate your name among us with honour: It is to your prudent direction in this important affair, that after our deliverance from ſo great an evil, the tranquility which ſucceeded, has been continued to us, productive of ſo much happineſs to every individual.

GRATITUDE obliges us, Sir, at a time when no flattery can be ſuppoſed to influence us, or that we can be aw'd by any fear of power, or tempted by any views of intereſt, to pay you this juſt tribute of our ſincere applauſe for the conſtant attachment ſhewn to the intereſt of this Iſland, during an adminiſtration of fourteen years; and we beg leave to aſſure you, that it is with a particular pleaſure to ourſelves that we are appointed by the council to return you this due and grateful acknowledgment, which we now do in their name, wiſhing you a happy and proſperous voyage, and that for your long and faithful ſervices, you may meet with a gracious reception from your ROYAL MASTER.

Gentlemen,

Return you, and the other gentlemen of his majeſty's Council my moſt ſincere and hearty thanks, his kind teſtimony of their affection, which gives the higher pleaſure, coming from a board for which r had ſo great an eſteem.

hat I have always intended well, that I have acted be beſt of my capacity, with juſtice, with integrity ſt certain, but my ſhare of abilities has not been I am ſenſible, to the importance of the office. your kindneſs has turned your eyes on my intentions, and overprized my actions; the greater is my obligation. The applauſe of ſo honourable a board crowns my exit with glory, and ever ſhall be had by me in the greateſt remembrance.

The ADDRESS of the Houſe of ASSEMBLY of the Iſland of Jamaica, as the ſame was delivered on the 24th Inſtant, by Richard Beckford, Eſq; Chairman of a Committee appointed to give their Thanks to Col. Trelawny, for his juſt Adminiſtration, and the many important Services rendered this Iſland; with Col. Trelawny's Anſwer.

SIR,

WE are ordered by the houſe of aſſembly to give you their thanks, for your juſt adminiſtration, and the many important ſervices rendered this Iſland.

IT is with the greateſt chearfulneſs, that we obey the commands of the houſe on this occaſion, tho' we are ſenſible of the difficulty of performing them, ſuitable to their expectations, and to the dignity of the ſubject.

THE difficulties and dangers that ſurrounded us on your firſt entrance into this government; gave you opportunities of diſplaying the higheſt abilities, which you exerted in every inſtance, where the honour of his majeſty's crown, and the public intereſt of your country called you.

BY theſe virtues, inſtead of borrowing, you have added a luſtre to that exalted ſtation, in which our gracious ſovereign had placed you; by your moderation and unaffected concern for the welfare of thoſe over whom you preſided; you have ſecured their love and affections, and thereby acquired a glory, which KING's cannot give.

CAN we look back on the miſerable ſituation of our country, bleeding under the rage of a cruel and inteſtine enemy? can we reflect on the expence of blood and treaſure, the alarms and dangers to which we were continually expoſed, during that horrid rebellion? and not remember that it was by the prudence of your conduct, and the ardour which your example infuſed into all orders of men, that reſtored peace to Jamaica, reclaimed thoſe ſavages, and rendered them uſeful citizens; how happily this event has been improved for the public good, the number of ſettlements now carrying on, in the parts moſt expoſed to that dangerous enemy, loudly proclaim.

IF in the midſt of thoſe eminent ſervices a few rays of diſcontent have at times appeared, let them be attributed to the courſe of all human affairs, and not to want of virtue in you. You ſaw with humanity thoſe unhappy diviſions, and many were your attempts to conciliate the minds, and reſtore good temper amongſt us, by your prudent endeavours, harmony and unanimity were reſtored, and you have thereby left behind you a monument of gratitude, in the heart of every diſpaſſionate man in this community.

THESE are our pure ſentiments, which we have choſe to deliver to you now you are in a private ſtation: They are not only ours, but the ſentiments of the whole body of the people, whom you have governed for ſo many years.

WE ſhall detain you no longer than to execute the commands of the houſe, which we do by returning you their thanks for your juſt adminiſtration, and the many important ſervices rendered this Iſland.

Gentlemen,

THIS kind teſtimony of affection from the houſe of aſſembly, claims my warmeſt acknowledgments. 'Tis to their affection I am obliged for the favourable light in which they have placed my actions, my intentions indeed have ever been directed to the good of this Iſland, nor did I ever take any ſtep relating to the public, but with a view ſolely to the public good. The conſciouſneſs of this is the greateſt of ſatisfactions, but the voice of a whole people delivered by their repreſentatives, in this public manner, adds a joy unknown to me before, and fills me with the pureſt ſenſe of gratitude.

May this Iſland flouriſh throughout all ages! you have no inteſtine enemy, you are happily in harmony among yourſelves, nothing is wanting to compleat that happineſs, but to be ſecurely fortified againſt a foreign enemy, which I moſt ardently wiſh, nor am I warmed in this concern for your ſecurity, by motives of affection only, but I wiſh it as a Briton. I conſider the vaſt importance of this Iſland to his majeſty's crown, and the public intereſt of my country. From an honeſt view to your ſervice have I applied to my royal maſter to be relieved, and with pleaſure have I reſigned my truſt to a gentleman who has compliſh that end, which he certainly will property aſſiſted, here and at home.

Kingſton, in Jamaica, November 25th. Monday laſt was held, at the town of S Vega, before his excellency Charles Know captain-general, governor and commander in this Iſland, preſident, and nine other of his maj commiſſioners appointed by act of parliament, court of admiralty, for the trying, hearing and mining felonies, pyracies and robberies commi the high ſeas, &c. WHITEHALL Evening-Poſt, Oct. 5, 1752.

act of a Letter from Colcheſter, Aug. 18.

Perhaps you have heard that a cheſt was ſeized he cuſtom-houſe officers, which was landed near place about a fortnight ago: They took it for gled goods, though the perſon with it produced ng of France's ſignature to Mr. Williams, as a urgh merchant. Our people not ſatisfied with count Mr. Williams gave, opened the cheſt, of them was going to run his hanger in, when n to whom it belonged clapt his hand upon nd deſired him to deſiſt (in French) for ſe of his dear wife. Not content with rs plucked off the embalming, and ad ſaid. The man, who appeared to onſequence, was in the utmoſt ago- made a ſpectacle of the lady. They gh church, where any body might her, and would not ſuffer him to ave a further account of himſelf. cheſts of fine cloaths, jewels, &c. ceaſed. He acknowledged at laſt n of quality, that his name was was born at Florence, and the England, whom he married, and ried in Eſſex; that he had bro't Italy to France by land, there ver, diſcharged the veſſel there, r Harwich, but was drove hither This account was not enough he muſt tell her name and con- lear himſelf of a ſuſpicion of mur- nually in tears, and had a key of fat every day with the corpſe: ſee him there, and the ſcene ſo ld hardly bear it, he ſaid it was nliet. He was much pleaſed with ae talked both Latin and French, s gr ſurprize) told him who the lady ich ying to be a perſon he knew, he ot he uncovering the face. In ſhort, the man conſed he was the earl of Roſebury's (the name Primroſe) and his title lord Dela- ; that h as born and educated in Italy, and r was in ngland 'till two or three years ago, n he came o London, and was in company with lady, wit whom he fell paſſionately in love, and vailed on h to quit the kingdom and marry him; having b health, he had travelled with her all er Europe and when ſhe was dying ſhe aſked for n and pap and wrote, 'I am the wife of the rev. Mr. G—, rector of Th— in Eſſex; my maiden name was Cannom, and my laſt requeſt is, to be buried at Th—.' The poor gentleman who laſt rried her, proteſts he never knew ('till this con- ion on he death-bed) ſhe was another's wife; but plian e with her deſire he brought her over, ld have buried her at Th— (if the corpſe bei ſtopt) without making any ſtir about e nobleman had made this confeſſion, Mr. G—, who put himſelf at firſt in a threatened to run her laſt huſband thro' wever, he was prevailed on to be calm; ented to him, that this gentleman had expence and trouble to fulfil her deſire; conſented to ſee him; (they ſay that very moving, and that they addreſ- ivilly.) The ſtranger proteſted his dy was ſo ſtrong, that it was his ly to attend her to the grave, but ver with her there. Mr. G— attended him to London yeſterday, and they were very civil to each other, but my lord is inconſolable; he ſays he muſt fly England, which he can never ſee more. I have had this account from many hands, and can aſſure you it is fact. Kitty Cannom is, I believe the firſt woman in England that had two huſbands attend her to the grave together. You may remember her to beſure; her life would appear more romantic than a novel."

From the London Magazine, for October, 1752.

In the Gazetteer of the 9th, we had the following particulars relating to the ſame affair. The perſon called the young Florentine is the eldeſt ſon of the earl of Roſbury, a Scotch peer, againſt whom a ſtatute of lunacy has ſome time been taken out; his title is lord Delmany, not lord Delamere, as it was printed in the letter. Some of the circumſtances are not true in fact, tho' the letter-writer from Colcheſter might be miſtaken. Lord Delmany was born and educated in Scotland, and never had been abroad 'till within theſe four years. When he came to London, he ſaw and fell in love with the celebrated Kate Cannom, actually married her, and carried her abroad with him. His lordſhip, in order to conceal his name and quality from the world, in his concern in this extraordinary affair, endeavoured to paſs for a Florentine, and would ſpeak nothing but French or Latin, of which he is a great maſter: He pretended to be incapable of ſpeaking Engliſh, and had almoſt accompliſhed the deſire of the deceaſed, without diſcovering himſelf. The world may put what conſtruction they pleaſe upon this odd accident; but ſuch an inſtance of tenderneſs, as it is ſeldom to be met with, ought not to be ridiculed, as he knew nothing of her previous marriage.

Paris, Oct. 13. Letters from Port L'Orient bring advice, that they are fitting out eleven ſhips with the utmoſt diligence, in which 4400 men are to be embarked for the Eaſt Indies.

London, Oct. 21. Upon a report, that the parliament will meet early this winter, which however we dare not affirm, many members and other perſons of diſtinction are haſtening up to town, and it is thought, as there is no appearance of the public tranquility being diſturbed, abundance of popular bills will be brought upon the carpet, in order to revive and promote induſtry, repreſs that diſpoſition to indolence and luxury, which prevails amongſt the lower ſort of people, and give proper encouragement to theſe who would undertake things calculated to eaſe and aſſiſt the public. Meaſures ſo much the more neceſſary, as we ſee almoſt every nation in Europe purſuing them, and even tortoiſes may win a race, if you not only let them ſtart firſt, but don't think of following them in time.

Oct. 24. On Monday laſt John Apperly, Eſq; one of his majeſty's engineers, and chief engineer to the African company, ſet out for Portſmouth, in order to embark on board the Earl of Halifax, Capt Thompſon, for Africa, to direct the building and repairing ſeveral forts and caſtles upon the coaſt of Guinea.

We hear from a place called Buſhmead, in Huntingdonſhire, that a few days ſince a woman of that place was delivered of five children, three of whom are now alive: The ſame woman had three children at a birth about 11 months ſince; ſo that ſhe has had 8 children in leſs than 12 months.

We hear that the parliament will not meet for the diſpatch of buſineſs 'till the middle of January.

It is ſaid that all government turns upon the two hinges of Rewards and Puniſhments; and this experience ſhews to be true. But in a certain country, the Laws turn only on one Hinge, and on that unluckily, which the people (whether out of Obſtinacy, or inherent Courage, is not determined) leaſt regard. It is propoſed to hang the government ſpeedily and ſteadily on both Hinges, by giving public and handſome Rewards to all who diſtinguiſh themſelves by Induſtry, Probity, or merit of any kind; and that a proper Fund will be fixed for the Payment of theſe Rewards, by ſuppreſſing Offices where, though the Salaries are large, there is little or nothing to do for it.

London, Oct. 26. The Fubbs yacht, that is to bring over the duke of Newcaſtle, ſailed for Calais laſt Sunday; and yeſterday and to-day the yachts that are to bring over his majeſty were all on their way, in order to join the men of war appointed as convoys, and ſail together for Helvoetſluys.

In a few days ſome veſſels will be taken into the ſervice of the government, to carry ſtores, timber, deals, &c. to Gibraltar, Port-Mahon, &c.

London, Oct. 28. According to private letters from Conſtantinople, by the way of Venice, the Janiſſaries have cauſed a very curious relation to be printed at Pera, in latin, Italian, and French, in which their conduct is juſtified in a very plauſible manner, and the whole blame of the late commotions thrown upon the indolence of the Grand Seignior, and the iniquity and inſolence of the black eunuchs, who are proved to have been the incendiaries, for ſome years paſt, and to have cauſed many hundred Janiſſaries to be put to death for crimes committed by themſelves. In this piece it is poſitively denied that the Janiſſaries have any intention to depoſe the Grand Seignior, or ever to put him upon making war with any of the Chriſtian powers, their ſole aim being to engage Whitehall, Oct. 28. We have received Liſbon, that on the 19th of September laſt, the fleet, with 18 merchant ſhips and one man of w arrived at that port: A lieutenant and eigh came as paſſengers on board this fleet, bein who had been ſaved out of a French Eaſt guns and 350 men, which left Port L'Orient in A and was bound to Pondicherry; but having unhappil fire about 100 leagues from the coaſt of Brazil crew periſhed, except theſe nine men, who eſca boat. There were ſeveral paſſengers of diſtincti particularly M. de la Touche, who commanded of Pondicherry, and there were likewiſe magnific preſents for the nabobs and chief people of that country, abou three millions of livres in ſpecie; and 600 barrels of powder.

London, Nov. 1. It is confirmed that General Wall, the Spaniſh ambaſſador, who is on his return to London, is charged with the neceſſary inſtructions for concluding a new convention with the Britiſh court, relating to the navigation of the Engliſh in the Weſt Indian ſeas: It is alſo ſaid, that his Catholic majeſty has ſent poſitive orders to the governor of the Havanna to pay out of the royal treaſury the ſums agreed upon as an indemnification for the Engliſh ſhips illegally taken by the Guarda Coſtas in America; and that the Spaniſh governors in that part of the world have been charged to be more careful for the future to prevent the like cauſes of complaint.

Our correſpondent at Paris informs us, that the Marquis d'Argenſon, in his return to court, was ſtopped at a ſmall diſtance from Niſmes by ſix perſons; one of them deſired that he would forgive this extraordinary manner of proceeding, aſſuring him, that as they were ſincerely loyal to the king, ſo they had the greateſt affection and moſt profound reſpect for his perſon, and only deſired he would preſent the memorial of the grievances of the Proteſtants to his moſt Chriſtian majeſty; which he very readily promiſed, and has very punctually performed.

All the late advices from Peterſburgh and Stockholm agree, that there is no probability of ſeeing the peace of the North diſturbed, the Ruſſian and Swediſh courts being equally diſpoſed to cultivate each other's friendſhip; the former wanting nothing but to maintain a kind of empty pre-eminence, which may in moſt caſes be allowed without any prejudice to its neighbours; and the latter being under no temptation to quarrel, unleſs forced to it by engagements with other powers: So that if no broils ariſe in Germany, no diſturbances happen in the North.

They write from Vienna, that the privy counſellor Hugo, has lately reſigned all his employments into the hands of their Imperial majeſties, on account of his paſſing into his Britannic majeſty's ſervice, as elector of Hanover, but as yet; we do not hear what poſt he is to have.

London, Nov. 4. We are informed, that there is a certain court in Europe, whoſe agents are very induſtrious every where in prying into all manufactures, and loſe no opportunity of practiſing on the paſſions or diſtreſs of able workmen, in order to perſuade them to quit their native countries, for one where, as they are pleaſed to aſſert, merit is properly rewarded; and too frequently ſuch inſinuations prevail.

We hear there is a ſcheme on foot for building another bridge croſs the River Thames, but upon what part thereof is not yet known.

Thurſday a meſſenger arrived from Harwich, with an account that the Lords Anſon and Delawar arrived there on Wedneſday night, and propoſed ſailing at ten o'clock the next morning for Holland.

The Oporto Packet, Dodſon, from Hull for Oporto, in his paſſage between the Longſand head and the Northforeland, run through betwixt two and three hundred ſail of French fiſhing veſſel, who had a great number of hands on board.

TO-MORROW.

TO morrow, didſt thou ſay?
Methought I heard Horatio ſay to morrow!
Go to— I will not hear of it— to morrow!
—'Tis a ſharper that ſtakes his penury
Againſt thy plenty; that takes thy ready caſh,
And pays thee nought but wiſhes, hopes, and promiſes,
The currency of idiots.— Injurious bankrupt,
That galls the eaſy creditor!— To morrow!
It is a period no where to be found,
Unleſs perchance in the fool's kalendar,
Wiſdom diſdains the word, nor holds ſociety
With thoſe who own it— No, Horatio,
'Tis fancy's child, and folly is its father,
Wrought of ſuch ſtuff as dreams are, and as baſeleſs
As the fantaſtick viſions of the evening.
But ſoft, my friend— Arreſt the preſent moments,
For, be aſſured they are errant tell tales,
And tho' their flight be ſilent, and their path
Trackleſs, as the wing'd couriers of the air,
They poſt to heaven, and there record thy folly;
For that thou, like a faithleſs centinel,
Didſt let them paſs unnotic'd, unimprov'd:
And know, becauſe thou ſlumbredſt on the watch,
Thou ſhalt be made to anſwer at the bar
For every fugitive: And when thou thus
Shalt ſtand impleaded at the high tribunal
Of hood-wink'd juſtice, who ſhall tell thy audit?
Then ſtay the preſent inſtant, my Horatio;
Imprint the mark of wiſdom on its wings:
'Tis of more worth than kingdoms; far more precious
Than all the crimſon treaſure of life's fountain:

YESTERDAY.

WELL — Yeſterday is paſs'd, and cannot be Recall'd.— What did we yeſterday, Horatio?
we, or good, or bad? — Let us reflect—
muſt not be forgot; for in the book
Of heaven 'tis minuted.— Did we tranſgreſs?
Doubtleſs we did — But heaven is merciful:
Yet let us not abuſe heaven's mercy: Our duty
Is repentance— What is repentance aſk'ſt thou?—
mourn the follies paſt, prevent the future.—
revent the future," mind; for cries and tears Alone are vain— Yet who can think to have ncens'd the univerſal Sovereign,
Without a flood of tears?—At every fault
Of mine, whenever I remember it,
My heart weeps blood.— Then let us in to penitence.
But ſure, we have not always ſinn'd—not always.
Some good we do—I yeſterday reliev'd,
A cenſur'd friend; his crime was poverty;
And with my gold, I gave him reformation
In the world's eye, and reconcil'd it to him.
And thou, Horatio—'Twas a noble act—
Didſt ſave a beauteous maid from violation.
Oh, how her virtue ſtruggled with her want,
That moſt inhuman tyrant! O want
Thy whips cut deep, and force the wiſe and good
Oft to obey thee, in deeds their ſouls abhor.
"My poverty, but not my will, conſents,"
Sighs "Fancy's ſweeteſt child"— Accurſed want,
Had not thy powerful aid prevented it,
Had ſurely forc'd her.
Let us perſiſt in actions ſuch as theſe:
So ſhall To-Morrow, ſmiling, yield us comfort,
And every day the ſame—till death, the friend,
The trueſt friend to innocence and virtue,
Shall come, benign, to uſher to the court
Of the celeſtial prince, whoſe plaudit waits us,
And all the hoſt of heaven ſhall ſhout us, WELCOME!
